

Discover Your Inner Homeschooler

Why am I considering homeschooling?

What positive outcomes do I associate with homeschooling? Are there statistics I have seen, or personal testimonials I have heard?

At the end of our homeschooling journey, what do I want my child to have gained by homeschooling?

When my child tells a future spouse or coworker about their homeschooling experience, how would I want them to describe it?

Take a moment to jot down your doubts and fears about homeschooling.

How will you resolve those fears and doubts? How will you face the challenges they present? (For example, will you join a support group? Get your kids involved in a co-op? School year round with frequent breaks?)

Now that you have examined your expectations and your doubts, and you have a plan in place for facing challenges, you are ready to start writing down your goals and making a plan for your homeschool journey.

My Homeschool Goals

Goals for homeschool graduation:

www.trianglehomeschoolresources.com

Goals for 10 years:

Goals for 5 years:

Goals for 2 years:

Goals for 1 year:

Now consider the atmosphere you want to cultivate in your homeschool. Is your focus academic? Faith-based? Relationships? Exploration? Or a mix of these and more? What will you do to cultivate and maintain that atmosphere...

...annually?

...monthly?

...weekly?

...daily?

"Go confidently in the direction of your dreams! Live the life you've imagined." Henry David Thoreau

TIP: Even if you don't have 10 years left in your homeschool journey, you can still imagine a future for your homeschooled child. Where will it have taken them in their career? In life?